

Preservation/Exterior Envelope Project Architect/Associate

Applicants shall be architects or intern architects with a background in historic preservation and building envelopes. Candidates must have at least 4-6 years of practical experience. Responsibilities will include building envelope investigation and analysis, report writing, preparation of design and construction documents with little supervision, construction administration, and field inspections for a variety of building types. A degree in architecture and/or historic preservation is required. Applicants should have demonstrated experience working for architectural firms for at least four years.

The ideal candidate should possess the following characteristics:

- Field experience with historic preservation, restoration, and/or building envelope projects.
- Proven track record in the development of construction documents and meeting deadlines.
- Strong analytical, organizational, and writing skills.
- Ability to work well with clients and to coordinate with inter-disciplinary teams.
- Ability to work on suspended scaffolding and aerial lifts.
- Familiarity with the NYC Façade Inspection and Safety Program (FISP).
- Proficiency in AutoCAD and Microsoft Office.
- Enthusiasm, love for the profession, and self-motivation are absolutely essential for this position.

The salary range is $75,000 to $85,000 USD per year.
