Note: While the formal program concludes on Friday 28 March with your departure, this is a wonderful opportunity to stay on in Rome on your own to see the endless variety of sites. Additional information and guidance can be provided for those who choose to stay on their own, or for that matter arrive early.

Spaces may fill quickly so we encourage you to express your interest promptly!

This Assorestauro (Italian association for architecture, art and urban restoration) planned tour is open exclusively to APTI members and members of APT's many chapters. Not only will you benefit from the wealth of onsite learning, but this is also a tremendous international networking opportunity!

At the end of the grand tour, Assorestauro will send a report with all the worksites visited and the personal contacts of all professionals who attended.

AIA Continuing Education Credits are anticipated to be available for this tour. While the exact number hasn't yet been set, our last trip provided over 20 AIA HSW Learning Units.

This unique itinerary is educational and memorable, as previous APT travellers will attest. You will not only be traveling with highly knowledgeable peers with common interests but will have access to unconventional sites and the Italian preservation experts sharing their methods and techniques. Each day participants will visit several projects and attend special seminars with preservation experts including Italian engineers, architects, conservators and academics.

And of course, we will see art, architecture, and preservation activities while enjoying food and wine in ancient hill towns and world-famous UNESCO world heritage sites.

Observations from past APT travelers with Assorestauro

"It was a fantastic trip, with amazing sights and the opportunity to see "behind closed doors." We observed work being performed on active conservation sites and discussed methods with those doing the work. Having trained in Europe but now working in Canada, it was a great way to observe and discuss the differences in conservation philosophies across the globe with local specialists and the other participants. The trip rekindled my joy for the work we do. And let's not forget the great company, delicious food and long Italian lunches in the countryside!"

"The first trip in 2019 was such an enriching and meaningful experience I went again in 2022. Historic preservation in Italy is a fascinating blend of traditional techniques and cutting edge technology. I look forward to going again in 2025 to learn from the top preservation professionals in the country while all the details taken care of for me."

"The opportunity to learn unique techniques from Italian colleagues was a special and life-long memorable experience. The education, conversation, food, and wine ... every moment was pure joy."

"The Grand Tour Restauro 2022 in Italy was a captivating journey that seamlessly blended professional enrichment with cultural immersion. Each day was a journey into the heart of Italy's rich heritage. Guided visits to iconic landmarks offered profound insights into the country's architectural marvels and restoration efforts. Networking opportunities with esteemed restoration firms and agencies further enriched my understanding of preservation practices. This meticulously curated itinerary not only expanded my professional horizons but also left a lasting mark on my appreciation for Italy's timeless beauty and cultural legacy."
